Wireframeing

I found that Pidoco—a web based wireframe tool seems most effective and beneficial because it has the ability to let you add multiple pages to your wireframe, making it as if you can really envision your final layout. I think with this tool it gives you the chance to work on your web design in more detail and so if you were to show it to a client they would better envision the end result. You can even display it on a mobile device and share it with others electronics.

Indesign is a very good software to use while wire framing because you can make it more interactive such as adding animations and pictures. Combines with photoshop and you would produce a clean sketch of the potential design for the webpage.
